THREE forms of eye trouble are commonly met with, any one of which may have existed from birth. Nature does not always make perfect eyes. We have near-sightedness, far-sightedness and astigmatism, which is a form of irregular sight. All of these defects require attention. If a child has any of these ocular defects and is expected to do close work of any kind, he must have his eyes carefully examined and wear such glasses as will correct the refraction of his eyes. As well expect a child born with one leg shorter than the other to walk without limping as to ask one born with imperfect vision to do accurate eye-work without suffering the consequences. Consultation free.

Penhold Rifle Assoc'n.

On Saturday last a match was shot on the Western Range between Penhold and Innisfail. Although the weather was not quite all that could be desired, good scores were put on, especially as several of the men on both sides were new shots. Everyone seemed to have a good time and after a well shot match Penhold won by 16 points. Appended are the scores:

A Marvellous Freak.

O. J. Donaldson, working with W. E. Playle, has one of the most astonishing freaks of nature ever seen in the west, at his homestead eight miles west of Markerville. This monstrosity is in the shape of a fine red and white calf which was born on Friday last, 12th of July. The animal has six legs, the extra ones being just behind the shoulders. They are nearly as long as the other legs, and extend along the back. When the calf walks these extra limbs move in harmony with the others. There are other features about the calf which make it a most remarkable animal. The tail is located about two inches to one side of where it ought to be and both sexes are represented in the animal. Mr. Donaldson has already been offered a quarter section of land for his wonder but he has declined the tempting offer. We understand the animal will be on exhibition in Red Deer during the fair.

HOSPITAL DONATIONS.

During the past week donations have been made as follows: W. Hoskins, plants; Mrs. Bone, pansies; Mrs. Bryan, butter and lettuce; Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Carlyle Moore, Corporal Springvale, 15th Light Horse, Magazines; Hospital Ladies Aid, six bedspreads, six pillow slips, two milk pitchers.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held on Monday evening of last week. It was decided to extend the holidays to Monday August 26th this year. All the teachers were re-engaged except Miss Campbell, who is retiring from teaching. Two new teachers will be added after the holidays, namely Miss Jennie Good, of Red Deer, and Mrs. Wanless, of Ponoka. It is gratifying to see the board giving positions to Red Deer teachers where possible, and the practice should be encouraged.

Baseball League.

The boys in the baseball league have been playing good ball lately but the weather is sometimes against them. Owing to there being some changes in the games and some disputes the schedule has been changed somewhat and the games extended. The following is the revised schedule of games: July 19—Wigwags vs Mechanics July 23—Waskasoo vs Outlaws July 26—Outlaws vs Mechanics July 30—Wigwags vs Waskasoo Aug. 2—Waskasoo vs Mechanics Aug. 6—Outlaws vs Wigwags Aug. 9—Mechanics vs Waskasoo Aug. 16—Wigwags vs Mechanics Aug. 16—Outlaws vs Waskasoo Aug. 20—Waskasoo vs Wigwags Aug. 23—Mechanics vs Outlaws. Standing of league to date.

The Creamery.

Owing to the scarcity of butter during the past few months the Government creamery was enabled to make an advance payment of 20 cents per pound for first period July summer season. For June the standard advance of 12 and one half cents per pound has been made, but owing to the smaller make of butter all over the country the price will likely be somewhat higher than usual this summer. The first test under Babcock system was made on Saturday and the butter maker will be pleased to explain the principles of this system of testing to any patrons who do not understand it.

All about Dogs.

Chief Rothnie is always worrying about something. As there isn't any snow to bother, and the lanes and roads are cleaned up and a number of crows have been run into pound he is looking for fresh fields to conquer. This week it is dog he is after. Bob tailed, yaller, mongrel swish and just plain dog. Every son of a canine will be run in that has a tag on it to show that it is a respectable law abiding quadruped. The Chief has his work cut out all right. A word to the wise should be sufficient.

Coalbanks.

Rev. C. Groves will conduct service (Church of England) in the Coalbanks and Sinking Lake district on Sunday, July 21. At 4 o'clock. All cordially invited.

The committee recommended that the commissioners be authothat the returning officer be instructed not to proceed with the $15,000 for the extension of the water works system till further advised by the council so to do.

Also that the chairman of all committees be asked to make no further expenditure until they bring in their final estimates for the year. Report adopted.

the report of the Health committee, recommending that the

A TURN OF THE WHEEL.

By Constance D'Arcy Mackay.

Copyright, 1907, by Constance D'Arcy Mackay.

It was summer in Ballymore—long days of blue and white and green, the blue of the sky, the white of drifting clouds and the bright green of the Irish turf. Some rose gold in the folds, with roses bloomed by the hedges, fragile and exquisite, yet full of snarls for the unwary. Many an eager child plucked at them only to withdraw a scratched finger.

Terry O'Rourke, looking up from his potato patch, philosophically observed that "him frowns was as sharp as they were sweet, frowns one of 'im," and then smiled to himself, thinking of Clodagh. Clodagh was a girl, a wild rose and temper as keen edged as the prickliest thorn. "Yet, what matter about the thorns," said Terry, "if the rose be worth the winning."

He was as quiet and determined as Clodagh was lusty, and if, as his neighbors declared, he was a bit slow in his love-making he was none the less sure, true, he had a dangerous rival in Jim Hagan, who had lately fallen for a legacy and who had spent the half of it on a brand new jaunting car for the summer months. It was this that Jim had begged Clodagh to accompany him to the Gullinnet fair, some ten miles distant.

"Thank ye kindly, Jim," she answered, "but I've promised to go with Terence."

"You, thin, it's myself that will have to ride alone," sighed Jim disconsolately, "for, sure, there's no one in Ballymore who can take your place at all at this time of year."

The night before the fair Clodagh and Terry sat before her door discussing the joys of the morrow.

"We'll start early," said he, "and be back by nightfall."

"And I'll wear my best dress, with the blue ribbon," said Clodagh, "and keep my coat in the back of the cart."

"I mistrust ye'll have to hold it on your lap, navarrounne," said Terry, "on account of the pig."

"Pig?" cried Clodagh.

"I'm going to take the pig along in the back of the cart. 'Tis a fine pig I'm expecting to get for the fair."

"Terry O'Rourke," shrieked Clodagh, "do you think I'd ride in a cart with a pig?"

"You've done it before."

"Niver with my best dress on."

"Lave your best dress at home, thin," said Terry humorously.

Clodagh saw no humor in his remark.

"You can come between us," she said laughingly. "Will ye take me or will ye take the pig?"

"But, Clodagh, girl, be reasonable. The pig can do ye no harm. She's as clean as an angel and as well behaved, and 'tis my only chance of selling her."

Clodagh stamped her foot.

"I've given ye your choice, Terry O'Rourke. Once and for all, will ye take me?"

Terry was usually slow to anger, but now a danger spark burned in his eyes. "I'll take the pig," he said.

Clodagh frowed inside and banged the door.

Next morning she passed Terry's cabin, riding with Jim Hagan in his jaunting car. Her mouth drew down as she saw the sky, and his many ribbons fluttered in the wind. Terry was out in his garden, and Clodagh feigned not to see him, though she glanced round with a look of triumph.

"How are ye, Terry?" he called out. "Tis a fine day for the fair."

And they rattled off like the down the road, the new yellow wheels of the jaunting car shining in the sun.

Terry gazed after them. All the brightness seemed gone from life. It was as if the candle of his happiness had been blown out, leaving him in utter darkness. "Twas a wise man," he muttered, "twas a wise man, that was a fiddle jake. A turn of her wheel—and where are ye now, Terry O'Rourke?"

Then he harnessed up slowly, put the pig in the cart and took the road for Gullinnet.

There was no one to see Clodagh drive out of Ballymore save a few old women and children. The rest of her neighbors had risen with the dawn and set out for their fair hours ago. Clodagh, being of two minds whether to go or not, had kept the ardent Jim waiting till she reached a conclusion. Now she rode, swiftly along in order to make up for lost time. The road was almost deserted save in the distance, where there were a few tardy wayfarers like themselves. And these, too, having the start of them, soon vanished. Clodagh was contented enough. She felt that she was looking her best, and if she had any doubts on that score Jim's fluent tongue would have reassured her. She answered his love-making with laughing banter, and he was declaring for the twentieth time that he would make the kindest husband in the world when his jaunting car gave an abrupt lurch and Clodagh found herself sitting on one side of the road, while Jim scrambled up from the other. He did not even pause to ask her if she was hurt.

"Oh, be the powers," he ejaculated, "look at my feline car! The wheel's off, ruined rottenly."

"It's the wheel that's troubling ye—"

"—But Clodagh's scream was lost on him.

"My feline car!" he cried over and over again. From where they stood it was five miles to Ballymore and five to Gullinnet. The fiddlers and bawlers stretched away unheeding to the left.

"Well, can't ye do something?" said Clodagh. Her ankle was paining her, and her coat was very warm.

But Jim was better at repartee than at meeting emergencies, and with his head on one side he considered the situation.

"I'm thinking 'twould have to foot it," he said gloomily.

There was a sob in Clodagh's voice. "My ankle's wrenched, and 'tis not a step farther I'll go."

"You sit here, thin, and I'll go foot it," said Jim, his face red with shame.

"Yes, and it's fair time and the country full of vagabonds! That's a grand idea, Mr. Jim Hagan, to leave the whole entirely by myself!"

Jim whistled. "What'll we do, thin?" he demanded. "We'll sit here till some one comes," said Clodagh.

So they sat. Birds sang in the long meadow grass. A hare fitted by like a shadow. Nothing else stirred. The road stretched away white and deserted. Tim moodily scanned the horizon, and Clodagh watched it the sunlight would fade her ribbons. She wished devoutly that she had never come.

Who could have supposed that her pleasure in the sun and the light of the day should be so soon at an end?

She cast a quick glance at Jim. The great, unfeeling unwhimsical never once had he asked her how she felt or if her fall had shaken her. Ah, Terry was the lad! Terry always knew what to do!

And she had lost him—lost him through her own folly! There was no good in thinking of that now, and she blinked hard to keep back the tears. It was near noon. Her throat was parched, and the pang of Clodagh's misadventure. Hazel eyes she saw the sun on her.

"Why don't ye say something," she said, "instead of sitting there staring like a bump on a log?"

"What, Clodagh, here's some one coming at last!"

He was as quiet and determined as Clodagh was lusty, and if, as his neighbors declared, he was a bit slow in his love-making he was none the less sure, true, he had a dangerous rival in Jim Hagan, who had lately fallen for a legacy and who had spent the half of it on a brand new jaunting car for the summer months. It was this that Jim had begged Clodagh to accompany him to the Gullinnet fair, some ten miles distant.

"Thank ye kindly, Jim," she answered, "but I've promised to go with Terence."

"I'm going to take the pig along in the back of the cart. 'Tis a fine pig I'm expecting to get for the fair."

"Terry O'Rourke," shrieked Clodagh, "do you think I'd ride in a cart with a pig?"

"You've done it before."

"Niver with my best dress on."

"Lave your best dress at home, thin," said Terry humorously.

Clodagh saw no humor in his remark.

"You can come between us," she said laughingly. "Will ye take me or will ye take the pig?"

"But, Clodagh, girl, be reasonable. The pig can do ye no harm. She's as clean as an angel and as well behaved, and 'tis my only chance of selling her."

Clodagh stamped her foot.

"I've given ye your choice, Terry O'Rourke. Once and for all, will ye take me?"

Terry was usually slow to anger, but now a danger spark burned in his eyes. "I'll take the pig," he said.

Clodagh frowed inside and banged the door.

Next morning she passed Terry's cabin, riding with Jim Hagan in his jaunting car. Her mouth drew down as she saw the sky, and his many ribbons fluttered in the wind. Terry was out in his garden, and Clodagh feigned not to see him, though she glanced round with a look of triumph.

"How are ye, Terry?" he called out. "Tis a fine day for the fair."

And they rattled off like the down the road, the new yellow wheels of the jaunting car shining in the sun.

Terry gazed after them. All the brightness seemed gone from life. It was as if the candle of his happiness had been blown out, leaving him in utter darkness. "Twas a wise man," he muttered, "twas a wise man, that was a fiddle jake. A turn of her wheel—and where are ye now, Terry O'Rourke?"

Then he harnessed up slowly, put the pig in the cart and took the road for Gullinnet.

There was no one to see Clodagh drive out of Ballymore save a few old women and children. The rest of her neighbors had risen with the dawn and set out for their fair hours ago. Clodagh, being of two minds whether to go or not, had kept the ardent Jim waiting till she reached a conclusion. Now she rode, swiftly along in order to make up for lost time. The road was almost deserted save in the distance, where there were a few tardy wayfarers like themselves. And these, too, having the start of them, soon vanished. Clodagh was contented enough. She felt that she was looking her best, and if she had any doubts on that score Jim's fluent tongue would have reassured her. She answered his love-making with laughing banter, and he was declaring for the twentieth time that he would make the kindest husband in the world when his jaunting car gave an abrupt lurch and Clodagh found herself sitting on one side of the road, while Jim scrambled up from the other. He did not even pause to ask her if she was hurt.

"Oh, be the powers," he ejaculated, "look at my feline car! The wheel's off, ruined rottenly."

"It's the wheel that's troubling ye—"

"—But Clodagh's scream was lost on him.

"My feline car!" he cried over and over again. From where they stood it was five miles to Ballymore and five to Gullinnet. The fiddlers and bawlers stretched away unheeding to the left.

"Well, can't ye do something?" said Clodagh. Her ankle was paining her, and her coat was very warm.

But Jim was better at repartee than at meeting emergencies, and with his head on one side he considered the situation.

"I'm thinking 'twould have to foot it," he said gloomily.

There was a sob in Clodagh's voice. "My ankle's wrenched, and 'tis not a step farther I'll go."

"You sit here, thin, and I'll go foot it," said Jim, his face red with shame.

VANITY'S VISIONS.

Killing For Smart Woven Blouses.

One of the most distinctive features of cloth and woven blouses with the little fitted frills of tulle with which they are trimmed. They outline the center box plait as well as the little frills at the neck and the cuffs.

over the shoulders. In blouses of a more elaborate description these fitted frills are carried out in lace dyed to match the material.

Worn at the theater was a delightful specimen of the new evening head-dress.

It was a head-dress of white tulle, consisting of a lot of white tulle laid softly around the knot of hair, with a large soft cloth placed over the head and the hair at the back, and the hair at the front.

There is a great deal of handsome lace to be worn in the spring, and it is not assuming too much to say that lingerie designs will be in high vogue in the summer. Yokes, gumples and undersleeves of lace or embroidery will be important adjuncts to all frocks simple or elaborate, and the idea is largely one for the woman who likes frequent changes to renew the freshness of her dresses.

There is a revival of the pale blue well spotted with black chenille and edged with a narrow plaited frill. This is the vogue to wear with chinchilla and blue humming bird, his thread-like tail plume sweeping lightly down over the shoulders.

A CLEVER STORY.

An Interesting and Amusing Anecdote of a Famous Actor.

Sara K. Wilson, a girl friend of the ever lamented Frank Stockton, has contributed to the Ladies' Home Journal for April some very interesting and amusing anecdotes of the late actor.

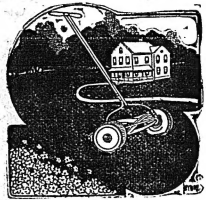

On the 19th of the month of May, 1891, the actor, who was then in the city of New York, was called to the stage to play the part of the Duke of York in the play 'The Duke of York' by the actor, who was then in the city of New York.

THE COSTLY G. T. P.

Little by little information comes out showing that the cost of the National Transcontinental will cost at least double the amount estimated by the government when the contract was made. The first revelation was made when the construction contracts were signed at schedule prices, estimated by the engineer at over $80,000 per mile. It now appears that the quantity of excavation is larger than was estimated and cost will be increased accordingly. Moreover the price of ties and rails is higher than was expected. So, whereas, Mr. Fielding placed the cost of the railway between Quebec and Winnipeg at $28,000 per mile with the extreme possibilities at $40,000, it is shown that the road bed alone on the parts under contract which are those most accessible, will be between $80,000 and $80,000, to which must be added the cost of ties, rails, trackrope, station buildings, tanks, workshops, etc.

Again it has been brought out by Senator Ferguson that the Rocky Mountain section, estimated at $50,000 per mile will likely cost $100,000. The still more striking fact has come to light that the adoption of the Yellow Head Pass route adds some four hundred miles to the costly section on which construction is easy and cheap.

UNION IS STRENGTH.

Considerable speculation has been aroused throughout the province with regard to the idea launched at the late convention regarding a north and south Conservative association and Calgary Conservatives are receiving some hard knocks in consequence.

Red Deer delegates were all for union. They felt that it was necessary to bind the bands more firmly between the north and south and that it was their duty to be the connecting link. The convention saw this at a glance and at once fell in with the idea. Red Deer desires to be in harmony with the north and south and long may she be the strongest link in the grand old party that will in a short time rule the destinies of this great dominion.

Col. Sam Hughes has been in the west again and he has been busy talking politics since his return to Ontario. He says there is only one opinion in the west on politics. The honest electorate, irrespective of party, seem disgusted at the carnival of graft, corruption and bad government of the Ottawa outfit. The splendid record, and still more splendid courage and statesmanship of Premier McBride and his colleagues, have won the admiration and confidence of the entire electorate. In the new provinces the two governments are already disintegrating. The electorate regard themselves somewhat like Indians on a reserve. They receive an annual sum per head, where they should control their lands, minerals and timber. The school legislation is already fast bearing its iniquitous fruit and the people see looming before them all the unfortunate results of that bargain and sale.

"The Roblin government in Manitoba is strongly entrenched. It is everywhere popular with the thinking people. To see the British Union Jack flying over every schoolhouse during school hours brightens the landscape, cheers the spectator and inspires the community."

"Everywhere in Dominion politics there is splendid sentiment for the Conservative party. Each centre is looking forward to the visit of the Conservative leader, E. L. Borden, this fall.

COMMISSION AT LACOMBE.

Senator Talbot before the beef commission at Lacombe last week suggested that the government might ship the cattle of the small farmer and familiarize the farmer with the cost of shipping and the prices realized at the terminal shipping in Montreal or Liverpool.

"The Burns company is so wealthy," said Mr. Talbot "for a common man to overcome. He would need to have millions." He said he had been asked by his brother in Toronto to ship his cattle east, but he found that the big shippers got a better rate than the farmer who dared to ship. Eastern buyers, who did not purchase through Burns & Co., could not compete with those who did, owing to the discrimination of freight rates.

At present not many farmers fed heavy cattle, due to the monopoly and uncertainty of the market. He was of the opinion that if anything were done to give relief and protect the small and moderate farmer the number of beef cattle produced in this district would be multiplied many times.

The settlers engaged in mixed farming were all strongly in favor of pork packing industry under government supervision.

MR. EMMERSON'S VINDICATION.

(Ottawa Citizen)

Counsel for the Crown and for Mr. Emmerson have prevented the hearing of the libel case until next January, and according to an interview published in Toronto, Mr. Emmerson has decided to take no further action in the matter. The one professed purpose of the former minister was to bring out the facts. To this end he instituted civil suits against three newspapers—and criminal proceedings against one. There was a fair chance to ascertain the truth if the trial had been allowed to go on. Mr. Emmerson was there to testify and be cross-examined. The night clerk and the two night watchmen of the hotel were there. The man who occupied the room next to Mr. Emmerson and was said to have complained of the noise, was in court. The night clerk of the Albi Hotel, whither Mr. Emmerson and the women went when they left St. Lawrence Hall, was present. These witnesses were all sent away without giving evidence, though the defendant was anxious to produce them all, including the minister himself. Whatever reason Mr. Emmerson may give for abandoning the proceedings the thing accomplished is the suppression of the facts. Mr. Emmerson now says that he is willing to leave the whole matter to the country. He might have done that without going to court at all, and he would have given the country a better chance to form a judgment if he had allowed the witnesses to testify.

"The federal opposition stands to day for the justification of the 'principles' and the policy of 'oult,'" wails the Edmonton Bulletin. Well perhaps, but there is one thing the federal opposition doesn't stand for, on your life, and that is "woman, wine and graft."

As the express came in from the north on Thursday evening last four horses, belonging to a band being driven near the station, rushed in front of the train at the north end of the platform and were instantly killed. One of the animals was cut in two as clean as a knife could do it.

R. J. McMahan, while operating a saw at the Great West Lumber Company's mill last week received a nasty cut near one of his eyes from a flying piece of wood. He had the wound dressed at the hospital and is able to be back to work again, none the worse for his narrow escape.

Can we get it? We believe we can. It will cost us considerable but our loss is your gain. But we need the money and we are going to get it. How? By selling twenty one thousand pounds (21000) of Deering and McCormick 500 ft per pound. This gives us $2520.00, just the amount required, 21000 lbs is not much twine when our average yearly out put is nearly three times that amount. But we want the money and when you can get the best twine on the market at absolute cost, viz, $12 per hundred you cannot let this opportunity pass. Remember this is no job lot but the very best McCormick and Deering Standard Twine manufactured in the winter of 1907 every lb. guaranteed by us, and furthermore we will insure you against hail until August 15th, that is if you are haled out on or before that date return your twine and get your money back. Cut this ad out and hold as our guarantee. What fairer proposition could you ask for, getting your twine at cost price and a guarantee as to quality and a safe harvest. Of course there is a limit to all things and our limit is July 31st and only 21000 lbs. at this price. First come first served, its the cash we want and one man's dollar is as good as the next. If you cannot get to town in order to take advantage of this great offer then mail your money and we will put twine to one side. But under no circumstances will we hold twine without the cash accompanies the order. This offer is for SPOT CASH only. Although your credit is good with us for several times the amount of your twine account, its the cash we need and its the cash we want. So please do not ask for credit in this particular case.

Remember this offer stands good only until July 31st.
